Reclamation Employe and Six Companies Worker In Jail Here

A. J. Duncan, concrete inspector for the Bureau of Reclamation, and Charles R. Harris, car-knocker for Six Companies Inc., are in the Clark county jail today awaiting disposition of charges growing out of their alleged theft of property belonging to Six Companies Inc.

The two men, according to reports, were picked up in Los Angeles last Friday by Sheriff Biscauluz, when they attempted to sell articles carried on a trailer loaded with brass and copper. When they could not account for their ownership of the articles, they were taken into custody by deputies from the sheriff's office, who immediately notified Sheriff Joe Keate.

DEPUTY ~~SHERIFF~~ Glen E. Bodell was dispatched to the coast to return the pair. They waived extradition, and were landed in Las Vegas last night. This is the first arrest in recent months of those pilfering materials from the construction firm.

Duncan is about 30 years of age, and married, Bodell states, and Harris is about 35 and single. Both have been on the job since 1931.

When haled into justice court this morning Duncan and Harris pleaded guilty to the charge of petit larceny against them and weresentenced to seven days in the Clark county jail.
