Dear Project Manager:

Lake Mead as a recreation area for motorized boating, in my opinion, is not only a huge draw as a tourism attraction but also for permanent family relocation to the area. As a native Minnesotan the motorized boating just outside the city that I chose to relocate to 10 years ago was a huge factor in that decision. Motorized boating in our city is a very unique recreation activity to a major city in the Southwest US. Choosing to no longer support infrastructure that would keep motorized boating on Lake Mead would be devastating. Selfishly that would mean no boating for my family which would in-turn mean our family's money exiting our local marina and Boulder City business. On a larger scale, I professionally work in an industry that is continuously hiring. Often new employees are making a decision to relocate to the Las Vegas Valley and our wide variety of outdoor activities, including motorized boating, is a factor in that decision. Choosing to not continue to support infrastructure to maintain motorized boating on Lake Mead would be taking something away from our area that is special and truly makes Las Vegas one of the best cities to live in in the world.

Sincerely,

David Zack
