

U. S. Investigates Worm Army Here

An army of worms, which has been crossing the highway from Boulder City to the dam for several days, has created considerable interest among bureau of reclamation engineers, and was the source of investigation today by Major D. M. Forester, sanitary engineer for the government, to determine what kind they are and where they are headed.

The phenomena is first noticed a short distance southeast of the junction of the high-line highway with the one leading to the rim of the lake at the boat landing, and extends for nearly a hundred yards.

The worms are about three inches long and there are apparently several million in the vicinity.
