

Sunday, March 19, 1995/Las Vegas Review-Journal and Las Vegas Sun/89AA

a

Readers' Pick: HOOVER DAM

It's a dam shame our readers aren't impressed by the majesty of one of the nation's largest electrical generation plants. Granted, compared to what can be found 27 miles up the road on the Strip, a visit to the dam isn't as intoxicating. But, then, without Hoover Dam, there wouldn't be a brilliantly lit Strip to visit — would there? Downtown Las Vegas finished a close second.

Perhaps it was because of the frequent long waits while nearby road construction was under way that led readers to pick Hoover Dam as the Most Boring Location.