

IMPORTANT SCIENTIFIC RESEARCH GROUP, BOULDER DAM BOARD BOTH TO VISIT BOULDER PROJECT SOON

Concrete Experts Will
Stop in Boulder April 1;
Board Coming on 9th

Two important visits by cement experts and noted engineers are scheduled for the Hoover dam project within the next two weeks.

On April 9 the Boulder Dam board will journey to Boulder City and the project on one of the business trips to study problems on the job.

Members of the latter board are Louis C. Hill of Los Angeles, Professor Durand of Stanford U., and D. C. Henny of Portland, Ore. Chief Engineer Raymond F. Walter will be here also on April 9.

Among the cement experts will be Professor Raymond Davis of Berkeley, and others from Chicago, Washington, D. C. and other cities.
