

Boulder To Try Fire Prevention

The week of July 24 to July 29 is National Fire Prevention Week.

The Six Companies, Inc., are taking steps to maintain the excellent fire record enjoyed in Boulder City since the city's inception.

"All employees are asked to clean up around their individual homes; all old rags, papers, trash, refuse wood, may be placed in garbage cans and hauled away in the usual course. Fuel wood and lumber should be piled at least 25 feet away from houses." This is the sum and substance of an open letter to all Six Companies Inc. employees, by Frank T. Crowe, general superintendent of construction of the Boulder canyon project.

The same steps are being taken by the bureau of reclamation fire department, according to Walker R. Young.
