Driver Jumps As "Cat" Takes Drop

Duke Thayer, driver of a large caterpillar at the dam, had a miraculous escape from death at 8:30 last night, when the machine he was driving tumbled off the bench at the power plant on the Arizona side of the river and fell 80 feet.

Thayer jumped as he noticed the ground, weakened by a cave-in below, giving way, and an instant later would have fallen to his death in the canyon below, had he remained with the machine.
