

Blast May Cost Worker's Vision

Troy Bell, bureau of power and light employe, received serious injuries to his eyes and may lose his vision, according to his attending physician, Dr. R. D. Balcom, as a result of a premature explosion of powder while he was at work yesterday at the Jean camp.

Bell was standing close by when the powder went off and was peppered with sand and gravel, suffering bruises besides the injury to his eyes.

He was rushed to the Las Vegas hospital and is receiving treatment there.
