

Rain Halts Work On Canyon Floor

171-35
Work on the floor of the Boulder dam project, including that of constructing the powerhouses, was halted this afternoon by a driving rainstorm, and it appeared unlikely that the swing shift on this particular phase of the work would go to work tonight.

The task of pouring the concrete on the dam proper was not interrupted.

Some 300 men were given a lay-off for the day by the order halting work on the floor of the canyon.