

BOULDER LAKE IS 64 MILES LONG

Boulder lake was 64 miles long today, according to reports by the bureau of reclamation.

The lake is rising in elevation at the rate of three feet a day, with approximately 16,000 cubic second feet flow through the tunnels.

The river itself is flowing at the rate of 59,300 cubic second feet, according to a recording made at Bright Angel this morning.