

BOULDER LAKE IS DEEPER TODAY

Boulder lake showed a gain in elevation of six-tenths of a foot today over yesterday's report, according to bureau of reclamation engineers.

The Bright Angel checking station this morning recorded the Colorado river to be flowing at the rate of 23,800 cubic feet per second. At Boulder dam water at the rate of 10,250 cubic feet per second was being released from Boulder lake.

Boulder lake's surface this morning was at elevation 923.8.