

Lawyers on Visit To Boulder Project

Boulder City was visited yesterday by a group of 210 members of the American Bar Association who spent some time viewing the Boulder canyon project before leaving for Los Angeles, where they will attend the convention of the association being held there.

The group arrived yesterday aboard Union Pacific buses, which transportation facility they were using to reach the southern California metropolis. They were delegates from Utah.