

Ohio University Students See Dam

A group of 35 students from the University of Ohio spent yesterday in Boulder City to visit the Boulder canyon project, as part of their annual 6,000 mile summer tour.

The group, in charge of Professor D. H. Wallott, of the university faculty, has been to the Pacific coast, and, prior to their arrival in Boulder City, visited the famed Carlsbad Caverns, Santa Fe, New Mexico, and the Grand Canyon. They are now en route to their home state.
