

Colorado River Flow Is Dropping

The flow of the Colorado river is still dropping in volume, with water running at the rate of 21,300 cubic feet per second. At the Bright Angel gauging station yesterday, the flow was recorded at the rate of 22,000 cubic feet per second, or 700 cubic feet per second more than today.

The surface of Boulder lake this morning was at elevation 925.3.