

Life Guard Is on Job at Dam Lake

The lives of Boulder lake swimmers will now be protected by Alfred Straub, of Fort Collins, Colorado, who has been appointed special life-guard.

Straub today took his post near the boat landing, and will be stationed there every day as a precaution against drowning. Since several persons have met with difficulties in swimming in the newly formed lake, Straub was given the job as live saver thru a field arrangement with the bureau of reclamation. He will be directly responsible to Chief Ranger W. H. Trimble, it was announced today.