

Henry Bashore Is Successor to Page

Henry W. Bashore has been selected as successor to John C. Page as commissioner of the bureau of reclamation, according to a release received by bureau of reclamation officials in Boulder City yesterday from Washington, D. C. Bashore has been with the bureau for 37 years and has been acting as commissioner since Page resigned recently because of ill health.

William E. Warne has been appointed assistant commissioner. He formerly was connected with the bureau but for some time has been director of information of the department of the interior.

Page was an official of the bureau of reclamation in Boulder City during the construction of Boulder dam.