

Reservation Gate To Be Nearer Town

Plans for moving of the reservation gate to a point nearer to Boulder City are being made by government officials.

It is understood the gate will be shifted to a point several miles nearer to Boulder City, where the officers at the gate will be able to see along the road for a longer stretch, where also motorists will have greater opportunity to see the stop signs, and the gate, and to slow down.

One reason for the proposed and impending change is the fact that it is desired electrical current be run out from Boulder to the gate, hence the distance to be shortened to simplify this connection.

The gate is now at the exact edge of the reservation, and is about five miles from Boulder City.
