

The Bureau of Reclamation reports that there are now about 600 houses and store buildings completed in Boulder City, Nev. The staff of the Bureau engaged on the Hoover dam project, which has been located at Las Vegas, 30 miles away since work was started, moved into its own quarters at Boulder City March 1. The Bureau reports that because of the great interest of the public in construction of the dam, the town is in need of a hotel to care for the tourists who are coming from everywhere by the thousands for a brief stay. There is no doubt that the town will have permanency since the power plants will afford work for many persons on the one hand after the actual construction is finished, while on the other the town has great possibilities as a winter resort, the Bureau states. The magnificent lake, the climate, and other attractions should appeal to a good winter tourist group. There are four schools in the town. Education is being handled jointly by the Federal Government and the Six Companies. High school children are absorbed in the schools of Las Vegas to which they are transported by buses.
