

Claude Johnson Is Hurt On Dam

Claude "Curly" Johnson, Six Companies employee, escaped serious injury Saturday night, when he was pinned between an agitator and a car on the railroad trestle over which the concrete is hauled from the low mixing plant to the dam.

Johnson was severely injured about the mid-section, and it was thought at first he might have been seriously hurt.

He was rushed to the Boulder City hospital and at last accounts is doing nicely.