

Dam River Camp Opened Saturday

The river camp opened for business Saturday night, and will be in full service after having been closed during the hot summer months. Ninety five men were housed in the camp Sunday.

Men are being moved from the porches of the dormitories in Boulder City to the River camp.

The commissary opened at the river this morning with L. M. Kahn in charge.

Men will be transferred to the river camp depending largely on where they are working, Six Companies Inc. officials stated today. There are six buildings, each building with accommodations for 72 men. The camp has its own mess hall with a commissary and pool hall upstairs.
