

Office of Building Chieftain Moves

3/29/32

With the shifting of the accounting offices of the Boulder City company from the north to the south side of the office structure, the office of Building Superintendent Charlie Holden and his staff has moved into the north room, formerly occupied by the accounting department.

The accounting department, now in its permanent quarters, formerly occupied by the post office, has a newly built concrete vault of large dimensions, as well as counter for the public, and other conveniences.