

Phewie . . It Gets Warm In Las Vegas

The heat-wave may have moderated in eastern cities, but it was just getting under way to a good start today in Las Vegas, according to Jim Squires, pinch-hitting for his father, C. P. Squires, veteran weather observer of Las Vegas.

At 2 o'clock this afternoon the official thermometer registered 113, with indications it might go even higher before starting to recede toward evening.

So far as could be determined, this is the hottest June day on record.