"Big Dan" Kalal, 37, pipefitter, was instantly killed in a slide of rock which occurred at 10:55 p. m. Saturday in the "pit" where Hoover dam will be built.

W. S. Patterson, another pipefitter, was severely injured in the same slide, and is in Boulder hospital; he suffered shock and severe bruises and cuts, also possible broken bones.

Kalal leaves a wife and two children in Sunnyside, Washington, and a mother at Roy, Montana. He came to the project on November 18, 1932.

Kalal was almost completely buried beneath the rock slide.
