

Concrete Bucket

Tips, Five Hurt

Charles B. Purdy, inspector for the reclamation bureau, suffered a badly sprained back while four Six Company's workmen were slightly injured when one of the big bucket loads of concrete being transferred from the electric trains to the dam below, tipped, pouring concrete on the workmen below.

No one was seriously hurt.