

New Movie May Be Made at Boulder

With plans for a probable return to take motion pictures on the Hoover dam project, should permission be granted by the bureau of reclamation, Warner Baxter and Henry King, Fox star and director, with their party, left Boulder City last evening for Hollywood after two days spent on the project.

A few pictures were taken during the stay of the party, the purpose of which either is indefinite or has not been divulged.

King was director for "State Fair," recent Fox release in which Will Rogers and Janet Gaynor had the leading parts.