

Firewater, Fire

3 Then Are Fired 33

Two high scalers had a hot time in more ways than one yesterday on the reservation.

Well fortified with firewater, they set fire to a government building, and ended a perfect day by being fired from their jobs.

The men, G. Adams and Stanley Peck, were picked up at the gate on their way in from Las Vegas, in what the officers declared to have been a 'gross state of intoxication.' They were placed in the auxiliary building, near the gate, to sober up.

One officer observing smoke emitting from the building, made a hurried investigation and found a blaze crawling up inside the corner of the room in which the men had been placed.

They were removed to the Boulder City jail, where they spent the night. This morning they were ordered off the reservation, it was announced.
