

KGIX To Be On Air Again Soon, Said

Radio station KGIX, "The Voice of Boulder Dam" at Las Vegas, will be on the air again shortly, it was announced this morning by J. M. Heaton, owner, after receipt of word from Washington that he had been victorious in retaining his permit.

An examiner sent out by the radio commission recommended that the license be cancelled, but he was overruled and Heaton was given permission to change the location of his station and gain a renewal of his license.

Heaton convinced the commission he was in a position to re-establish service and that Las Vegas is in need of the broadcasting services of his station.

Plans call for establishing the station in the Palace Theatre building, Heaton says, and it would be open within a comparatively short time.
