Folks,

If anyone still believes that capitalism's command over planetary systems is impartial, they must be residing in a J.R.R. Tolkien fantasy. Distorting Her (Mother Earth's) creation at any level has ramifications on every level. From the Frackers squeezing shale and drillers removing Her girth collapsing Her gravitational density resettling Her crust, irradiating Her liquid ubiquity, and spilling ancient molecular constructions on or in Her newest components on the surface and in the atmosphere, the mindless drive to profit is ruining the immediate and future quality of existence for everything organic.
